A sailor comes home to rest

By ELISABETH MOORE

Fireman 3rd Class Willard Irvin Lawson ended his nearly 4,400-mile journey home to the Ohio River valley on Friday evening as citizens stood along the roadsides through Trimble County to Madison’s hilltop in tribute to the young man from Milton who lost his life in the Dec. 7, 1941, attack on Pearl Harbor.

Lawson began that journey in January, 1941, as a farm boy from the Cooper’s Bottom area of the valley, a young man who wanted to see the world. But, his adventure lasted less than a year. He died with 429 of his crewmembers aboard the USS Oklahoma on the day that then-President Franklin Roosevelt called “a date which will live in infamy.”

Lawson’s remains had been for many years buried at the National Memorial Cemetery of the Pacific, known as the Punchbowl, in Honolulu, Hawaii. He was among those the military could not identify. In April 2015, the deputy secretary of defense directed that the remains of those unknown sailors on the Oklahoma be examined again. Lawson was accounted for August 27, 2018. The announcement was first made Nov. 26, 2018.

Richard Lugar, longtime Hoosier senator, dies at 87

By TOM DAVIES

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Richard Lugar worked to alert Americans about the threat of terrorism years before “weapons of mass destruction” became a common phrase after the Sept. 11 attacks.

Richard Lugar

The longtime Republican senator from Indiana helped start a program that destroyed thousands of former Soviet nuclear and chemical weapons after the Cold War ended — then warned during a short-lived 1996 run for president about the danger of such devices falling into the hands of terrorists.

“Every stockpile represents a theft opportunity for terrorists and a temptation for security personnel who might seek to profit by selling weapons on the black market,” Lugar said in 2005. “We do not want the question posed the day after an attack on an American military base.”

The soft-spoken and thoughtful former Rhodes Scholar was a leading Republican voice on foreign policy matters during his 36 years in the U.S. Senate, but his reputation of working with Democrats ultimately cost him the office in 2012. He died Sunday at age 87 at a hospital in Virginia, where he was being treated for a rare neurological disorder called chronic inflammatory demylinating polyneuropathy, or CIPD, the Lugar Center in Washington said in a statement.

Lugar’s long popularity in Indiana gave him the freedom to concentrate largely on foreign policy and national security matters — a focus highlighted by his collaboration with Democratic Sen. Sam Nunn of Georgia on a program under which the United States paid to dismantle and secure thousands of nuclear warheads and missiles in the former Soviet states after the Cold War ended.

Lugar served for decades on the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, twice as chairman, where he helped steer arms reduction pacts for the presidential administrations of George H.W. Bush, Bill Clinton and Barack Obama, supported an expansion of NATO and favored aid to Nicaragua’s Contra rebels.

“Lugar was a leader not only in the Senate but also on the world stage, where he worked tirelessly to bring pressure to end apartheid in South Africa and enforce treaties that destroyed Soviet weapons of mass destruction,” said Vice President Mike Pence, a former governor of Indiana, in a statement.

Another former Indiana governor, Purdue University President Mitch Daniels, who spent more than a decade as chief of staff to Lugar, said, “The world is safer from nuclear danger because of him.”

Lugar tried to translate his foreign policy expertise into a 1996 presidential run. But his campaign for the

Grace Brautigam wins the 108th MCHS Custer Contest

By TALI HUNT

One of Madison’s longest traditions continued Sunday afternoon at the North Madison Christian Church as five Madison Consolidated High School seniors presented their selections in this year’s Custer Contest.

About 150 people attended the 108th contest. They enjoyed oral performances by five of the Class of 2019’s top students: Hannah Huff, Maranda Elswick, Bailey Dyer, Grace Brautigam and Issac Hanson.

Brautigam won this year’s contest and the $750 first place prize for her performance of “Miss Temptation” by Kurt Vonnegut. Dyer received the second place prize of $350 for her presentations of “Fried Green Tomatoes at the Whistle Stop Cafe” by Fannie Flagg.

Huff, Elswick and Hanson each received recognition of equal rank and $275.

Huff presented an excerpt from Jane Austen’s “Pride and Prejudice:” Elswick presented “Please Don’t Eat the Daisies” by Jean Kerr, and Hanson presented “A Retrieved Reformation” by O’Henry.

The judges took more than their alloted time to make the decision this year after the students’ animated performances. The judges had to consider the contestants voice quality, actions and more. Other MCHS students performed instrumental and vocal pieces during the break to entertain the guests before the oral recitations and during the judges’ deliberation.

A. S. Custer started the oratorical contest with a $1,000 donation that the Community Foundation of Madison and Jefferson County has since turned into an endowment fund. Custer was born in Monroe Township. He was a teacher and businessman professionally. He saw the value in developing students’ oral performance skills and put forth a prize for those top students who proved the best in the skill to benefit them in their future endeavors.

NRA praises Holcomb for Indiana‘stand your ground’ law

STATE BRIEFS

Indiana

INDIANAPOLIS — The National Rifle Association is praising Gov. Eric Holcomb for signing legislation strengthening Indiana's "stand your ground" laws and removing the fee for certain firearm carry permits. Holcomb signed the legislation during the National Rifle Association annual leadership forum on Friday. The legislation will also allow people to carry firearms to church, even if there is a school on the grounds, unless the owner of the land specifically prohibits it. NRA official Chris Cox said the laws signed by the governor ensures that the most vulnerable gun owners are able to protect themselves without worrying about the cost of a license. An estimated 80,000 NRA members are in Indianapolis for the group's annual leadership forum this weekend. Both President Donald Trump and Vice President Mike Pence addressed the gathering Friday.

Help needed to ID remains in rural area

ELBERFELD — Authorities are seeking the public's help in identifying human remains found in a rural area. Warrick County authorities were contacted about the discovery Friday. The sheriff's office said the remains appear to be those of a white female, but she wasn't identified. Investigators say there's an orange and black frog tattoo on the top of the person's foot. The tattoo has a symbol in the center of its back that may signify "mother" or "mom." Additional details weren't released. Anyone with information can contact the sheriff's office at (812) 897-6180.

3 dead in Muncie after shooting report

MUNCIE — Authorities say three family members have been found dead at a home after a reported shooting. Emergency dispatchers received a report about a shooting at the Muncie-area home Sunday afternoon and Delaware County authorities later identified the dead as Casey Ritchie, 58, Denise Miles, 45, and Rylee Ritchie, 14. They all lived at the home. Details of the circumstances of the deaths weren't immediately released, but the sheriff's office said there was no threat to the public. Autopsies were planned Monday to confirm cause of death. State police and Muncie police were asked to assist in the investigation, which was ongoing.

Chicago man killed in toll road crash

GARY — A Chicago man is dead after his car veered into a ditch on the Indiana Toll Road near Interstate 65 in Gary and burst into flames. In a news release, the Indiana State Police said the car fire was reported at about 8:30 Saturday morning. When first responders arrived, they saw the car on fire but were unable to get into the vehicle until fire fighters gained control of the blaze. Responders broke a window and pulled the driver out and troopers administered first aid. The driver was later identified by the Lake County coroner as James J. Ariel, 22. He was dead at the scene.

State reaches milestone with courts

INDIANAPOLIS — The court system has reached a new milestone with the creation of the state's 100th problem-solving court. The recent certification of a veteran's treatment court in northern Indiana's Pulaski County means the state now has 100 courts that specialize in handling issues that include drug-treatment, veterans, mental health and domestic violence. Pulaski County Judge Crystal Kocher said she's proud that the new veterans' court has been certified for her rural county. She says its creation "highlights the need and possibilities for rural communities around the state to provide comprehensive services." Fifty Indiana counties are now served by a problem-solving court and several more such courts are in the planning stages. Indiana Supreme Court Chief Justice Loretta Rush said the courts' innovative approach requires "pioneering judges" capable of coordinating numerous resources.

Shuttered lake, dam should re-open this fall

HUNTINGBURG — A lake that was closed two years ago because of flood damage should reopen this year if its operators make state-sanctioned changes. The Huntingburg Conservation Club's lake and part of a Dubois County road that crosses its dam were closed in spring 2017 after heavy rains washed away soil around part of the dam. But The Herald reported the lake should re-open this fall if changes specified by the Indiana Department of Natural Resources are made to the lake and the dam. The DNR's plan includes lowering the lake about five feet, installing a new culvert and repairing the dam's spillway. Conservation Club President Bernie Main said the changes will cost an estimated $50,000. He said the changes will reduce the lake's size but make it more affordable for the group.

August trials set for 2 in forest homicide

PERU — Two men will face trial in August in the death of a man who was fatally beaten in a forest. A Miami County judge set an Aug. 19 trial for Ethan Cain, 22, of Marion. He faces murder, obstruction of justice and other charges. The Kokomo Tribune reported Cain is accused of a plot to rob Drake Smith, 22, of drugs and money. Authorities say Cain and LaFountaine resident Joshua Kean, 22, beat the Summitville man to death with a metal pipe last May in the Frances Slocum State Forest, near Peru. Kean's trial is also set to begin Aug. 19. He faces identical charges. Kean and Cain were arrested in May 2018 in Imperial County, California.

Man gets 4 years in teen's death

TERRE HAUTE — A Terre Haute man who pleaded guilty to reckless homicide in the death of a high school student during a party has been sentenced to four years in prison. The Tribune Star reported Nathan Derickson received the sentence Friday in Vigo Superior Court. He also will serve six years of probation. Derickson was 19 at the time of the shooting of William Garett Sands, 17, in March 2018. Officers found the Terre Haute South Vigo High School student dead at a Terre Haute home where minors were drinking alcohol. Police said Derickson was playing with a gun when it discharged. Derickson read a statement Friday in which he apologized to Sands' family. Derickson says he's sworn off alcohol and drugs and added, "I miss Garrett every day."

Court OKs regulation of state park hunting

INDIANAPOLIS — The Indiana Court of Appeals has upheld a state agency's authority to order deer reduction hunts in state parks to protect habitat and endangered plants. Indiana wildlife biologists evaluate which parks need a deer cull based on habitat and previous deer-kill rates. Reducing the parks' deer populations helps maintain habitat for other animals and state-endangered plants. The appeals court found in Tuesday's ruling that Indiana's Department of Natural Resources has authority to oversee regulated deer hunts at the state parks, The Herald-Times reported. "Based upon the record, we conclude the trial court did not err in dismissing the Center's amended complaint," the appellate court said.

100-year sentence for molesting children

JEFFERSONVILLE — A man who pleaded guilty to molesting children while working at a YMCA and at an elementary school has been sentenced to 100 years in prison. Michael Begin Jr. of Jeffersonville was given his punishment Friday in a Clark County courtroom after the 19-year-old earlier pleaded guilty to 20 counts of child molestation. Begin read an apology in court before family members of several victims made statements. Authorities say he molested children between the ages of 3 and 8 while working at the Clark County Family YMCA and as an elementary school teaching assistant. He was originally charged in 2017 with two molestation counts, and more charges were added later as additional victims came forward. He was a high school senior at the time.

Gary entrepreneurs demand retail change

GARY — Gary administrators are hampering the efforts of entrepreneurs to open new stores in the northwest Indiana city that's been long plagued by retail deserts, local business owners said. In 1960, the city's population peaked at 178,320, at a time when it was Indiana's second largest city. Gary's population has since dropped to a projected 76,000 people after consistently declining for decades, according to the U.S. Census Bureau. Retail-starved Gary residents also have opted to shop via e-commerce because of the shortage of stores in their neighborhoods. Gary retiree Silas Sconiers stated in an essay on the Medium website that he places numerous orders per month on Amazon as opposed to taking 50-mile round trips to Hobart, Merrillville and other retail clusters in Northwest Indiana. Fledgling businesses in Gary sometimes have issues with finding employees due to the city's unemployment rate that consistently ranks among the highest in the state. Gary Mayor Karen Freeman-Wilson said the city aims to create an online portal where new small business owners could obtain the required permits to begin operating.

Man accused of marrying 4 pleads guilty

DOVER, New Hampshire — A man accused of being married to four women in four states — including a Kentucky woman — pleaded guilty Monday to bigamy in New Hampshire, but he will avoid jail time if he behaves for the next five years. Prosecutors say Michael Middleton, 43, used the marriages to gain access to the women's assets. Middleton was arrested in Ohio in February. He also has faced domestic violence charges in Maine. As part of his 12-month suspended sentence, Middleton was ordered to undergo screenings for domestic abuse and substance abuse, and comply with any recommended counseling or programs.

Dog poop argument leads to shooting

LOUISVILLE — Louisville police say an argument over dog poop ended with a man shooting a woman in the face and repeatedly shooting another man. The Courier Journal reported Glenn Gholar Jr., 38, has pleaded not guilty to first-degree assault in the Friday shooting. Louisville police say the two wounded people suffered serious injuries and were expected to survive. Officers said Gholar and the two people were arguing about dog feces in a yard when he shot them. They say he fled in a vehicle and was pulled over by police, who then saw a revolver in "plain view" in the car.

Kentucky on track to meet education goal

FRANKFORT — A postsecondary education council said Kentucky is on track to reach its educational attainment goal of 60 percent of the working-age population having a certificate or degree by 2030. The update came as Kentucky's Council on Postsecondary Education released an annual progress report on educational achievement rates. It said the total number of undergraduate degrees and credentials conferred increased 2.9 percent in 2017-18 over the prior year. That beats the 1.7 percent average annual increase needed to stay on track toward the long-range goal. The increase includes public and independent institutions. The report shows undergraduate degrees and credentials increased 2.6 percent at both public universities and the Kentucky Community and Technical College System. Council President Aaron Thompson said the update shows efforts to improve teaching and learning, advising and student-support services are paying off.

Man booby-trapped porch with knives

LONDON — Authorities said they have arrested a Kentucky man who booby-trapped his front porch with a knife-filled sheet of plywood designed to swing downward. According to the Lexington Herald-Leader, the Laurel County sheriff's department arrested Raymond Jackson, 56, and charged him with possession of a destructive or booby trap device. The sheriff's department said deputies responded to Jackson's home outside London on Wednesday after a report of a man allegedly drunk and waving a large knife at neighbors, cursing at them and creating a disturbance. When they arrived, deputies say they found the booby trap, with the words "If this don't kill you I will. Come on" written on it. Jail records show Jackson is in Laurel County Detention Center. His bond is $10,000.

Rehab facility heals hurt animals, educates community

By RYAN TRARES
Daily Journal of Johnson County

Kids pet a suicata tortoise that lives at Utopia Wildlife Rehabilitators in Hope during an educational. Utopia focuses on providing care and rehabilitation to native Indiana animals, as well as going out into the community to educate about nature. (Submitted photo)

The door of the wooden barn swings open, and three bald eagles swivel their heads toward the opening.

Loki, Duncan and Odin had come to Utopia Wildlife Rehabilitators following different calamitous injuries. Loki and Duncan had been hit by cars, while Odin had been shot.

The animals are no longer healthy enough to live in the wild. But at Utopia's Hope-based facility, they've found a new life helping teach the surrounding communities about nature.

"People can come here and visit with them," said Kathy Hershey, co-founder of the wildlife rehabilitations facility. "We educate any way and any how we can. So many people are surprised by the things they learn here."

For the past 17 years, the staff at Utopia Wildlife Rehabilitators have worked to mend and heal injured Indiana wildlife that is brought to them. The animals and birds have been hit by cars, caught in traps, or abandoned by owners who originally tried to raise them as pets. A majority of the creatures brought to the facility are released back into the wild.

Those that are not able to survive on their own anymore become vital pieces of the organization's other goal: education. The group will be bringing some animals to the annual Johnson County Garden Celebration on May 4.

"People don't go outside anymore; they don't have any good information about nature," Hershey said. "On a given day in the spring and summer, I'll answer 60 to 70 questions about how nature works. Any opportunity get to teach, we take."

Coming down the long gravel drive, it takes a minute or so before reaching the faded wooden sign emblazoned with the words "Utopia Wildlife Rehabilitators."

Just beyond the sign, a faded green house is surrounded by huts, pens and other structures, each containing different animals or birds in varying stages of rehabilitation.

Owls, foxes, squirrels and raptors such as hawks and eagles were housed in their own areas. Turkey vultures and a sandhill crane were recovering in separate sections of the facility. A specific block of pens held turtles that had been injured and were healing.

Utopia Wildlife Rehabilitators was founded by Hershey and veterinarian Dr. Melissa Newcomb in 2002.

Hershey had worked for the Indianapolis Zoo, and often encountered injured animals that people had brought in hoping to get treated. She would check out the animals and then release them to rehabilitators in the area.

When the West Nile Virus reached Indiana in 2002, she and Newcomb were sought by animal control officials and conservationists to help care for all of the sick birds, particularly raptors, impacted by the disease.

They named their organization Utopia Wildlife Rehabilitators, but not because the term inspired warm and fuzzy feelings, Hershey said.

"'Utopia' stands for 'Up to our posteriors in animals,'" she said.

The facility is state and nationally licensed as a wildlife rehabilitation facility. The goal is to give veterinary care, rehabilitation and release to native Indiana reptiles, mammals, birds and birds of prey.

"We don't take care of lions or tigers or bears, or anything like that. We take care of the things that are normally found in the fields and farms and backyards of Indiana," Hershey said.

The organization works with Dr. Jennifer Waggoner Clarke and Hillview Veterinary Clinic in Franklin to provide immediate care to the injured animals and birds brought to them.

The goal is always to return the animals to the wild, if possible. Utopia staff members use zoo formulas and the most current dietary information and research available to provide their myriad species with the highest quality food as they recover.

Different animals also have different social needs, and the staff tries to recreate those during recovery.

For example, baby hawks, owls and other raptors are raised by foster birds — non-releasable animals that live at the facility. Utopia collaborates with other nearby rehabilitators who specialize in different species to try to get the orphaned babies into a group with the same species, age and development.

Once they have healed, the creatures are assessed to see if they will be able to survive on their own.

About 70 percent of the animals that come to the facility are able to be released, Hershey said. Some are too injured or sick to recover and have to be euthanized.

But a small population of animals are unable to function in the wild, but can live in captivity. Those become Utopia's resident educators.

The facility's resident groundhog, Grubby, is a local celebrity who stars in Hope's annual Groundhog Day event every year. A massive sulcata tortoise named Gus lumbers around a grassy enclosure when the weather is warm enough.

Momma is a fox who was hit by a car and suffered an injured back. Cloud the coyote was raised illegally by people as a pet, and loves to run to people.

"She changes people's attitudes. To put a name with a face helps people," Hershey said.

One of its most famous permanent residents is Parker, a turkey vulture who had been recovered in Columbus about five years ago. He was going to school yards, looking into classroom windows, and untying kids' shoelaces.

"He had apparently been released by someone who tried to raise him illegally, and he is fixated on people. He doesn't associate with other turkey vultures. Animal control couldn't catch him, because he'd recognize their cars and uniforms," Hershey said. "I went out to get him one day, throwing mice at him, and we eventually caught him."

Because of his affinity for people, Parker is often one of the main features in Utopia's educational programs.

"He loves his job. He's the most incredible bird. He spreads his wings and preens and makes faces to the crowd," Hershey said.

Utopia offers a summer camp to teach more about nature, visits schools and local civic organizations for presentations, and hosts open houses on the first Saturday of every month from spring to fall.

The Johnson County Garden Celebration was an example of those educational opportunities.

Officials at Utopia are active in partnering with groups around the area in its work. They work with Franklin College and provide an internship program for students at the school. Scout groups often come to do work or special projects; many of the pens around the facility were the results of these projects.

Cummins holds work days at the facility, where people can meet the animals and understands what Utopia does, Hershey said.

Recently, Utopia was able to construct a new building on the grounds to serve as a hospital building, office and classroom. The new space will give the staff more room to work than currently exists, and provide additional opportunities to host community members and provide education.

The interactions with the public are valuable, because many people don't understand how intertwined in the natural world our communities are.

"It can be frustrating. Wildlife lives in people's backyards, and a lot of people aren't willing to accept that," Hershey said. "I have conversations with people who want to trap everything and take it out of their yard. I tell them, if they do that, more things will move in."

The Bellanca Viking 17-30A crashed early Wednesday or Tuesday night at the Henderson City County Airport. The Gleaner in Henderson reported police searched the wreckage and found a duffel bag with cash and suspected cocaine. The crash killed Barry Hill, 47, and George Tucker, 48, of Sanford, North Carolina. State Trooper Corey King said investigators believe Tucker was piloting the plane and they were looking for a place to stop for fuel when it crashed. Tucker was a student pilot. The plane's owner told authorities he had previously let Tucker test the plane because Tucker was interested in buying it.

Paul looks at land ownership in forest

WHITLEY CITY — U.S. Sen. Rand Paul hasn't given up on a proposal to have the government sell some land in the Daniel Boone National Forest in McCreary County for potential commercial development. The Lexington Herald-Leader reported the Kentucky Republican had a meeting in McCreary County on Thursday to talk about the costs of federal land ownership. Paul's office said the meeting's purpose included looking at how to ensure affected communities have the maximum opportunity to create jobs. The issue resonates in a county where the federal government owns 81 percent of the land. Most of that is in the Daniel Boone National Forest, overseen by the U.S. Forest Service. Paul put forth a measure in February aimed at getting the government to sell some of that land. The Senate didn't approve the measure.

Braidy collaborates with BMW Group

ASHLAND — Braidy Atlas announced the creation of a milestone plan for cooperation with the BMW Group on sustainability and technical qualification for the future supply of series 5000x and 6000x automotive aluminum sheet. Included is a comprehensive closed-loop recycling strategy leveraging Braidy Atlas' logistically optimal location in Ashland, Kentucky and in close proximity to BMW's car production plant in Spartanburg, South Carolina. Braidy Atlas recently announced its intention to become the first North American rolling mill to use 100 percent green inputs from inception. As the first U.S. rolling mill to obtain a low-emissions air permit from the Federal EPA, Braidy has targeted 20 percent lower emissions than competitors.

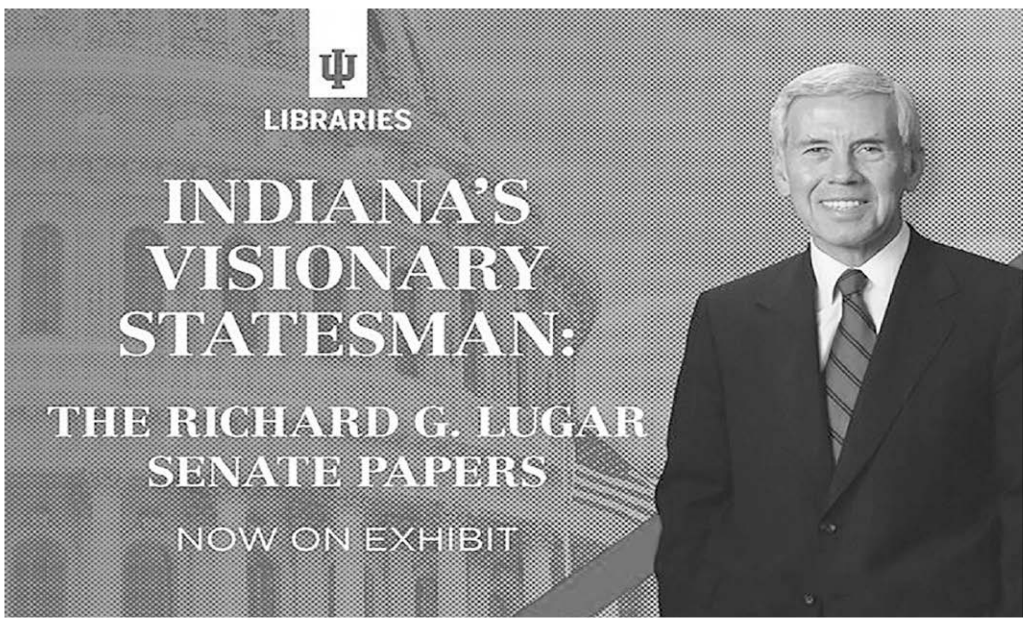
Reflecting on Sen. Richard Lugar and his contributions



LIBRARIES
INDIANA'S VISIONARY STATESMAN:
THE RICHARD G. LUGAR SENATE PAPERS
NOW ON EXHIBIT

"Senator Lugar's contributions to the life of our nation are countless. Richard Lugar was a leader not only in the Senate but also on the world stage, where he worked tirelessly to bring pressure to end apartheid in South Africa and enforce treaties that destroyed Soviet weapons of mass destruction. As the longest serving member of Congress from Indiana, and a Presidential Medal of Freedom recipient, he leaves behind a legacy of public service that will inspire Hoosiers for generations." — Vice President Mike Pence.

"The world weeps alongside Indiana after just learning we lost one of our best, ever. As an always faithful servant to the highest ideals in every walk of his incredible life, Richard Lugar ran the family farm, charted a new innovative course for Indiana's capital city, and devoted a record six terms as a U.S. Senator to making the world a more prosperous and peaceful place. He was an officer and gentleman, father and faith leader, a Mayor and Senator, a diplomat and legendary role model to millions."— Indiana Republican Gov. Eric Holcomb.

"Our nation has lost an extraordinary statesman who made the world a safer and better place. I have lost a wonderful friend and trusted partner. Dick Lugar treated every person with dignity and respect. This generation and future generations can learn much from his example in the political world and in life. Dick was a founding and active member of our Nuclear Threat Initiative Board of Directors, and we will always be very thankful for his outstanding leadership and friendship." — Former Sen. Sam Nunn, a Georgia Democrat who collaborated with Lugar on a program under which the U.S. paid to dismantle and secure thousands of nuclear warheads and missiles in the former Soviet states after the Cold War ended.

"Dick Lugar was not just the finest public servant I will ever know, he was the finest person. He embodied all we can hope for in our leaders: brilliance of mind, purity of motive, stainless in character, tireless in the pursuit of duty. Incomparably knowledgeable about the world, he was first and always a patriot, utterly dedicated to the security and wellbeing of his fellow Americans. His voice is now silent, but he is still with us. Indianapolis is a thriving and vibrant city because of him. The world is safer from nuclear danger because of him. And so many of us, while falling far short of the standards he set, are vastly better people because of him." — Purdue University President and former Indiana Gov. Mitch Daniels, who spent more than a decade as Lugar's chief of staff.

"As a boss, a mentor, and a person, Richard Lugar was the gold standard. At a time when nuclear proliferation was civilization's greatest threat, Senator Lugar helped save the world. He leaves a legacy as an exemplar of wisdom, civility, and bipartisanship. Always staying true to his temperament, he was a quiet, dignified statesman. He thought before he spoke. He emphasized substance over personality. In short, he set the bar for public leaders — and for leaders more generally. I'm not sure we will ever see another Richard Lugar, but I pray that we do." — Indiana Republican Sen. Todd Young.

"Senator Richard Lugar is a towering figure in Hoosier history and one of the greatest statesmen ever to serve in the U.S. Senate. As our longest serving Senator, he worked tirelessly with leaders across the globe to better the state and the country he loved." — Indiana Republican Sen. Mike Braun.

"Senator Richard Lugar was a true statesman and patriot, a leader who served with such integrity and intelligence. He was one of the finest Senators with whom I had the privilege of serving. Senator Lugar made such a positive difference not only as a mayor and a Senator but also globally where his foreign policy expertise was widely respected. At the Lugar Center, he continued to promote the bipartisanship that was a hallmark of his work in the Senate."— Maine Republican Sen. Susan Collins.

"From his work on the Farm Bill to his longtime commitment to reducing the stockpile of nuclear weapons, he was always willing to work across the aisle to do what's best for our country." — Ohio Democratic Sen. Sherrod Brown.

Lugar was "a true statesman whose decades of public service left an indelible mark on Indiana, our nation and our world. ... He was a brilliant scholar, a brave member of our armed forces, and a dedicated public servant who championed people and principle over party. ... In our increasingly divided society, everyone must ensure his legacy lives on by pledging to advance the Hoosier values of bipartisanship and cooperation that defined his life."— Indiana Democratic Rep. André Carson.

"Senator Richard Lugar was a Hoosier statesman without equal who worked tirelessly for peace, prosperity, and freedom at home and abroad. His wisdom, bipartisanship, and commitment to American ideals made our country stronger and the world safer. We mourn his loss, but we know his legacy will endure in those who follow his example of servant leadership." — Republican Indiana Rep. Jackie Walorski.

"Indianapolis mourns the loss of a native Hoosier and American statesman who changed the face of our city and embodied the heart of our nation. Senator Lugar's career is rightfully characterized by his time in the United States Senate and his outstanding leadership on matters of foreign security and international diplomacy. But he began his public life as a member of the Indianapolis Board of School Commissioners, before becoming a visionary mayor who embraced the transformative potential of local government. He understood that progress could only occur when good ideas and good people came together — from all sides of the political landscape." — Democratic Indianapolis Mayor Joe Hogsett.

"Having had the unexpected honor and experience of spending eight years working closely with Senator Lugar ('88-'96).... He was a one-of-a-kind hybrid of old-school historian-politician plus serious policy workhorse plus international chess player. Above all, Dick Lugar was a kind and generous man who cared deeply abut the future and welfare of children." — Kevin Kellems, Jefferson County representative to Our Southern Indiana Regional Development Authority and president of Madison-based The Strategy Center LLC.

Evolution of roads reflects a county's changes

By BUD HERRON

The late John Denver could have been thinking about Bartholomew County back in 1971 when he recorded his hit song, "Country Roads." If by "country roads" he meant "gravel county roads," the county had more than 300 miles of them when his record went on sale.

Dwight Smith, superintendent of the county highway department, tells me only five miles worth of Denver's dusty nostalgia still remain today — primarily small portions of County Road 1000S, 200E and 850S, southwest of Columbus.

Most county residents have little or no nostalgic feelings about gravel roads and can hardly wait until the final mile is paved. Time was, however, when gravel roads were all the rage — when gravel meant progress and greater economic prosperity.

Before 1855, roads in Bartholomew County were dirt paths — mostly hacked out by farmers in order to get crops to market and supplies back to the farm. Dry seasons created a series of rutted bumps, and wet seasons brought forth a muddy mess that tried to devour wagons and buggies like quicksand.

Property owners — mainly farmers — took care of whatever maintenance was done as a matter of economic survival, as well as Christian responsibility. After all, if you couldn't get to church, how would everyone join in a prayer for better roads?

A couple of wooden "plank roads" were built in the late 1850s by private "turnpike companies" made up of shareholders who lived along the routes and other investors. The shareholders paid for the construction and maintenance, and then were paid back when tolls were collected from those using the roads.

By the mid-1860s, the wooden roads had proven to be too expensive to maintain, so farmers and Columbus business leaders began pushing for better roads — which meant gravel roads — also to be owned and operated by private turnpike companies.

In 1870, Bartholomew County had more than 40 miles of such toll roads. They were called "pikes," shorthand for "turnpikes," named after the long wooden pole that swiveled or was lifted by a rope to stop and start travelers in order to collect the toll.

In spite of the official numbering system brought to county roads in 1959, the term "pike" still is used by many county residents today for various roads. Hartsville Pike is arguably the name that has stuck the longest. (In fact, longtime residents might debate which present day county road is the rightful "owner" of that name. Residents in Hawcreek Township often refer to East County Road 500N from Hope to Hartsville as the Hartsville Pike. Meanwhile, Clay Township residents sometimes use the same name for East County Road 50N from Columbus toward Otter Creek Golf Course. Both were once called the Hartsville Turnpike.)

The toll road system continued to grow and 15 turnpikes were in operation by the early 1880s. Fewer people could now grumble about wagons getting stuck in the mud, but many were still not happy. Now, users complained about the outlandish 1.5 cents-per-mile toll and the turnpike company owners were complaining that the high cost of maintaining the gravel roads was eating up their profits.

The discontent already had boiled over once in 1872 when the Burnsville-Columbus Turnpike ran into financial problems and was only able to gravel slightly more than 3 miles of the proposed 10-mile road, yet was still charging the full toll. Residents in the Burnsville area began forcing their way onto the road without paying. Arrests were made. Lawsuits were filed.

Then a group of hooded "night riders" formed at Burnsville and proceeded repeatedly to destroy the toll houses and pikes. Fistfights and threats of greater violence finally forced the turnpike company to suspend tolls until the entire road could be completed.

By 1886, discontent over the tolls reached the point that a resolution was placed on the ballot to empower the county to buy all the roads and remove the tolls. The referendum was narrowly defeated — likely because voters figured out the choice was either tolls for those using the roads or taxes for everyone.

Finally, near the turn of the 20th century, with automobiles on the near horizon, the voters approved the purchase by the county, in favor of what the campaign literature called "free roads" — a rather naive use of the term, it seems.

Today, our Bartholomew County Highway Department maintains more than 700 miles of road and side ditches, 203 bridges, 400 major culverts and thousands of road markers and traffic signs.

In addition to Dwight Smith, the department employs 15 road workers, three mechanics, one engineer, an office manager and two administrative assistants. The annual budget is about $3.5 million.

Some simple math seems to indicate the move from private to public roads was a good idea, in spite of John Denver's nostalgia for dirt, gravel and hairpin turns.

Bartholomew County has an estimated 32,000 households. If each household had just one vehicle and drove the vehicle only 500 miles a year on county roads (both very conservative figures), total county mileage would be 16 million miles. And, if the 1.5 cents-per-mile toll (at its 2018 equivalent of about 29 cents) were still in place, the privately collected tolls annually would be $4.64 million.

Paying that kind of additional money to drive on a gravel road doesn't seem like a good idea to me, and I am sure the Burnsville night riders would agree

Use your voice

Keep the public in public education

Jennifer McCormick — who will be the last state superintendent of public instruction elected by Indiana voters — has a message for Hoosiers.

Speak up.

In a speech earlier this month, McCormick, whose elected position will become a governor-appointed one beginning in January 2021, encouraged the public to be a voice for public schools.

"For 2020, if we don't push on our state folks who are running for office and say 'What is your philosophy on public education? Show me your plan about education. Who are you running as your state superintendent?' If we don't push and we're quiet, shame on us," McCormick said.

Thanks to legislation passed in 2017 by the Republican-controlled legislature, the public's role has been diminished in choosing the education official who directs the state education policy. Intense ideological friction over such issues as vouchers and charter schools, which date back to former Democratic superintendent Glenda Ritz, led to House Enrolled Act 1005.

The legislation, which changes the way that the state's top education office has been chosen for 165 years, was originally scheduled to go into effect in 2025. The change was moved up four years after McCormick's announcement last year that she would not seek another term.

Opponents of the move argue that it concentrates power with the governor at the expense of voters. We believe that it is a step toward taking the public out of public education.

As McCormick noted, in most states either the state board of education is elected or the state superintendent goes through confirmation by those who are elected.

In Indiana, beginning in January 2021, that public voice in oversight of education policy will be missing.

In a presentation at Ivy Tech Community College in Fort Wayne, McCormick encouraged attendees — which included parents and teachers — to stay engaged, to be a voice for public schools. She noted that candidates for public office are rarely asked about education issues, and that should change.

She also urged people to consider running for office: "We need good people to run who believe in public education."

McCormick is right. But you don't need to become a candidate to speak up. Go to your local school board meeting, call your representative, let state and local officials know how you feel about teacher pay, education funding and other issues.

You will no longer have a say in selecting the state superintendent, but no one can take away your voice. So use it.

Bomb scare suspect arrested in Tippecanoe courthouse scare

By DAVE BANGERT
(Lafayette) Journal and Courier

Michael Battering

LAFAYETTE – Police arrested a 47-year-old Lafayette man Friday, tying him to bomb threat that emptied the Tippecanoe County Courthouse the morning of April 11.

Michael Battering was being held in the Tippecanoe County Jail, accused of false reporting of an explosive device and intimidation, according to a release from Sheriff Bob Goldsmith.

What led investigators to Battering wasn't immediately clear Friday afternoon. Goldsmith did not immediately reply to attempts to get more details.

On April 11, someone called the Tippecanoe County Clerk's office about 8:30 a.m., saying bombs were going to detonate a short time later. Police evacuated the courthouse. Police dogs searched the outside of the courthouse, then the inside of the courthouse. The dogs also searched the Halleck Federal Building a block north of the courthouse, at Ferry and Fourth streets.

Employees were allowed back in at 10 a.m. that morning.

Investigation into Clarksville shooting

Courier staff report

Max David Helton, 43, of Clarksville died Friday evening after he was shot when officers from the Clarksville Police Department and Indiana State Police from the Sellersburg Post responded to the 500 block of Howard Street for a report of a domestic disturbance, possibly involving a gun.

A news release from Indiana State Police said an autopsy conducted by the Jefferson County, Kentucky, Coroner's Office listed the cause of death for Helton as a gunshot would to the chest.

The results of a preliminary investigation lead ISP detectives to believe that "officers witnessed a male subject with a gun at the doorway" when they arrived to the residence. The release said officers reported the man retreating into the house and barricading himself and the person who called 911 inside. The release said officers encountered the Helton again and that he was "still brandishing a handgun."

Officers reported Helton refused to listen to commands to drop the weapon and that at least one officer from CPD fired and struck Helton. They administered first aid at the scene before Helton was taken to the University of Louisville Hospital. He died later from the injuires.

Chief Mark Palmer of the Clarksville Police Department requested the assistance of ISP detectives and crime scene technicians to investigate the shooting.

2 Carroll drug arrests

Courier staff report

Two were arrested in Carroll County, Kentucky this weekend in separate incidents.

Officers responded Friday evening to a complaint of a suspicious vehicle on Caroline Street in Oakview Estates. An investigation led to the arrest of a female for parole violation and multiple charges of possession of a controlled substance, possession of drug parapheranalia and tampering with physical evidence, said a news release.

A male subject was arrested after a traffic stop Saturday in the Kroger parking lot. The stop was initiated for an expired vehicle registration. Officers conducted a roadside investigation, during which they found drugs and paraphernalia. A news release said multiple citations were issued and a passenger was arrested on charges of possession of a controlled substance (metamphetamine), possession of marijuana and drug paraphernalia.

Hancock court illustrates why jail crisis in many counties

By BEN MIDDLEKAMP
(Greenfield) Daily Reporte

GREENFIELD — One man admitted he had tested positive for methamphetamine three months into his 30-month sentence of home detention and probation. The man next to him had tested positive for fentanyl.

"Where do you see yourself in 20 years? Do you want a family?" asked Judge Dan Marshall as he questioned the two men in Hancock County Superior Court 2.

The door to Marshall's courtroom seemed to continuously open and close on Friday afternoon, as people crammed into the gallery, some standing in the back while others sat near their loved ones or conferred with their attorneys before going before the judge. Marshall prepared to hear from 31 people who had violated probation, mostly due to testing positive for drugs. Some, however, didn't show up to court.

Of all the crimes that land people in the increasingly overcrowded Hancock County Jail, violating probation is the No. 1 culprit — and it's fueled by drugs. On certain afternoons in Superior Court 2, the probation violators are rounded up and herded before Judge Marshall. Some days are busier than others; Friday's docket of 31 cases was considered heavy, and it portended more people going back to jail, swelling a population that never seems to wane.

In the first hour of the scheduled hearings, Marshall revoked the probation of seven people and ordered them to finish their sentence in the Hancock County Jail. Others who haven't repeatedly violated probation were ordered to be put on home detention or sent to Hancock County Community Corrections.

Marshall asked everyone if they were addicted to the drugs they took while on probation. Some admitted they were. Others said it was just a mistake.

"If you're not addicted, don't use them on probation, unless you want to go to jail," Marshall said.

While Marshall conducted hearings, court security escorted a total of 13 people to be booked into the jail over the course of a few hours, Hancock County Sheriff Brad Burkhart said. The 157-bed county jail housed 242 people as of 3:45 p.m. on Friday. That's less than expected given the all-comers session in Superior Court 2, he said.

Most of the people who stood in court on Friday have repeatedly violated probation, Burkhart said. Judges have no other choice than sending them back to the already overcrowded jail.

"I understand it," Burkhart said. "I'm not upset with them in any way because that is the right way to handle it. It's just unfortunate that we're full."

Burkhart and Keith Oliver, jail commander, over the past two weeks have been planning for the influx of probation violators. They called in extra officers to help with booking and moved inmates from the jail. Community corrections took in 13 inmates eligible for work release on Friday morning, and staff on Thursday outsourced 10 sentenced Level 6 inmates to the Switzerland County Jail.

Even with those adjustments, it still pushed the jail to within range of its all-time high population. Hancock County officials are in the beginning stages of designing a 440-bed jail that could cost up to $43 million. Last year, the jail hit a record high 259 inmates; Burkhart expects that to increase over the summer.

Although the number of probation violators who were booked into the jail on Friday is unusually high, Burkhart said it's a growing trend as addiction to drugs keeps its hold on many people in the community.

The Hancock County Jail processed 646 probation violation bookings in 2018 — the biggest cause of incarceration, according to the facility's annual report. That's a fifth of the jail's 3,024 bookings for 2018.

'They still violate'

Many people who violate probation also have substance use disorders, said Amy Ikerd, crime-prevention specialist with the Hancock County Probation Department. They might not be receiving the right type of treatment, are non-compliant with treatment or hide away once they're sentenced to probation.

"When people disappear, it makes it difficult," Ikerd said.

The next time officers typically see them is when they're arrested on a new offense, most commonly theft due to drug use, Marshall said in an interview. Many people steal alcohol from stores or pawn items they take from cars and homes to pay for drugs, Marshall said.

Those who aren't getting re-arrested often violate probation by testing positive for drugs, like many on Friday. But that doesn't immediately mean extended jail time, said Josh Sipes, chief probation officer for Hancock County. The department has a system of penalties imposed on probation matters. Some people attend more classes and meetings, more frequent probation appointments, community service or are sent to community corrections or put on home detention.

But people keep violating probation despite the department's attempts to provide them treatment.

The county offers medication treatment, like the opioid blocker Vivitrol, and counseling inside the jail; a heroin protocol program for people who seek to serve out their sentence in recovery houses; a drug court program for those battling addiction; mental health and counseling in the work release program; and other services within the probation department for people addicted to alcohol and marijuana.

In addition to more treatment programs, the county also added a pretrial release program aimed to assist low-risk defendants who qualify through a screening process to be released from jail while their criminal case is pending instead of spending months in jail or posting money for bond. Former chief probation officer Wayne Addison supervises that program.

Gayle Conley, adult probation officer supervisor, said people on probation addicted to heroin and meth are the highest-risk clients for the probation department. She said the addiction changes the person's cognitive abilities and makes it even harder for them to stay sober.

Ikerd said during her 15 years working in addiction treatment, the past few years have been the most challenging. Addicts are more impulsive and less motivated than ever before to seek help, she said. Of the 1,073 drugs cases the Hancock County prosecutor's office worked in 2018, about a third involved the possession or dealing of hard drugs, such as narcotics and meth, and also the unlawful use of a syringe.

"We're begging people to just do the basics of what we need them to do," Ikerd said, "and in addition to that, we're providing them with housing, clothing, food, hooking them up with all the resources to eliminate any barrier for them to comply, and they still violate."

Probation officers and treatment specialists try to work with inmates on a road toward recovery and change probation programming to better fit their situation, Conley said. They try and start treatment when people are in jail to prepare them for probation, Ikerd added, whether that's the heroin protocol program or some other assistance. But despite those efforts, some people don't want the assistance.

"It's never good when someone has violated. None of us like it," Conley said. "None of us like seeing someone going to jail, but a lot of times I feel better when they're in jail because they're alive and they're safe."

Conley said people have always violated probation, but now they're doing it in a different way, she said. It pivots on how drugs cycle in and out of the community. Meth is growing in usage, she said. The prosecutor's office worked 98 meth possession cases in 2018; 47 in 2016; and four in 2014.

In court on Fridays, Marshall said he used to see seven or eight people on the court day set aside for people on probation who fail drug screens. Thirty-one in a day is uncommon, he said.

Marshall said he sees people back in court three or four times for violating probation. The first violation rarely results in the person going to jail, he said. On Friday, Marshall ordered some probation violators to community corrections or home detention as alternatives to jail. He said people who struggle with drug addiction are violating probation faster than those who, say, were guilty of battery or drunken driving.

People charged with Level 6 felonies, which is the lowest penalty for possession of meth and possession of narcotics, tend to violate probation at the same rate or at a higher rate than those charged with misdemeanors, Marshall said. There are five times as many misdemeanors as felonies, he said. Of the 31 probation violation hearings set for Friday, 17 were charged with Level 6 felonies.

The number of people violating probation and getting booked has also grown because of a larger caseload. More than 2,000 adults are on probation in Hancock County, a record number, Sipes said.

Some people have acclimated to the jail setting instead of fearing it, Sipes said. Many bounce from jail to jail and have warrants and are serving probation in several counties, he said, getting caught in a cycle.

Tips minutes before synagogue shooting

POWAY, California (AP) — The FBI said Monday that it received tips on a threatening social media post about five minutes before a gunman burst into a Southern California synagogue and opened fire with an assault-style rifle, killing a woman and wounding a rabbi and two others.

The tips to the FBI's website and phone number included a link to the anonymous post but did not offer specific information about its author or location of the threat.

The FBI said employees immediately tried to determine who wrote the post, but the shooting occurred before they could establish his identity.

"The FBI thanks the alert citizens who saw and reported the post," the agency said.

One of the tipsters told The Associated Press that he called the FBI tip line at 11:15 a.m. Saturday because the post linked to a manifesto that said the author was responsible for a mosque arson in the city of Escondido last month. He says he found online that had the mosque attack had happened and feared the new threat was real.

The tipster, who refused to provide his name because of security concerns, said the call with the FBI lasted four or five minutes and the shooting happened soon after. He described the FBI as quick and professional and said he doesn't know what they could have done.

The shooting happened around 11:30 a.m. Moments afterward, police arrested 19-year-old John T. Earnest of San Diego. He is being held on suspicion of murder and attempted murder.

The online manifesto written by a person identifying himself as John Earnest was an anti-Jewish screed posted about an hour before the attack.

The poster described himself as a nursing school student and praised the suspects accused of carrying out attacks on mosques in New Zealand that killed 50 people last month and at Pittsburgh's Tree of Life synagogue that killed 11 on Oct. 27.

About 100 congregants were worshipping at the Chabad of Poway near San Diego on the last day of the Jewish holiday of Passover, which celebrates freedom, when the gunman killed Lori Kaye, 60. He also wounded the synagogue's rabbi, Yishoel Goldstein; Noya Dahan, 8; and her uncle Almog Peretz.

Goldstein said he was preparing for a service and heard a loud sound, turned around and a saw a young man wearing sunglasses standing in front of him with a rifle.

"I couldn't see his eyes. I couldn't see his soul," Goldstein said. He raised his hands and lost one of his fingers in the shooting.

And then, Goldstein said, "miraculously the gun jammed."

In the moments that followed, Goldstein said he wrapped his bloodied hand in a prayer shawl and addressed congregants gathered outside the building, vowing to stay strong in the face of the deadly attack targeting his community.

"We are a Jewish nation that will stand tall. We will not let anyone take us down. Terrorism like this will not take us down," Goldstein recalled telling the community.

Authorities said Earnest had no previous contact with law enforcement and may face a hate crime charge in addition to homicide charges when he's arraigned later this week. He was being held without bail, and it was unclear if he had an attorney.

Police searched Earnest's house and said he was also being investigated in connection with an arson attack on a mosque in nearby Escondido, California, on March 24.

There were indications an AR-type assault weapon might have malfunctioned after the gunman fired numerous rounds inside, San Diego County Sheriff William Gore said.

An off-duty Border Patrol agent fired at the shooter as he fled, missing him but striking the getaway vehicle, the sheriff said.

Shortly after fleeing, Earnest called 911 to report the shooting, San Diego Police Chief David Nisleit said.

When an officer reached him on a roadway, "the suspect pulled over, jumped out of his car with his hands up and was immediately taken into custody," he said.

Goldstein described Kaye as a pioneering founding member of the congregation and said he was heartbroken by her death.

Cincinnati woman hit, killed on I-65

Courier staff report

A Cincinnati woman was hit and killed Monday morning on I-65 south in Bartholomew County, closing the interstate for nearly three hours.

Indiana State Police officers responded at 3:30 a.m. and found Jarlene Hargrove, 31, who was dead at the scene.

Trooper Matt Holley with the Indiana State Police-Versailles Crash Reconstruction Team led the initial investigation of the crash scene. A news release from ISP said police found Hargrove had been traveling southbound on I-65 in a 2005 Cadillac SUV near the 58-mile marker when the vehicle left the roadway and became stuck in the median.

Law enforcement found she left her vehicle and walked into the southbound lanes. She was struck by a 2015 Volvo tractor trailer driven by James E. Gause, Jr., 49, of Marion, South Carolina. Gause's vehicle was then hit from behind by a 2016 Freightliner tractor trailer driven by Christopher A. House, 44, of Bardstown, Kentucky.Gause and House were not injured.

Toxicology results on Hargrove, Gause and House are all pending and the investigation is ongoing.

The Bartholomew County Sheriff's Department, Bartholomew County Coronorer's Office, Jackson County Sheriff's Department, Columbus Police Department, Columbus Regional Hospital EMS and Columbus Township Fire Department assisted.

Mr. David Leroy "Hap" (as he was known by many people) Chandler, age 78, of Cross Plains, Indiana, entered this life on July 27, 1940 on Graham Road near Madison, Indiana. He was the oldest of seven children born to the late Thurman and Mable McGee Chandler. David's family moved to Cross Plains shortly after his birth and that is where he grew up and was a 1958 graduate of the Cross Plains High School. He furthered his education attending one year at Ball State University. On November 28, 1959, he married Anita McCauley in Dewberry, Indiana. This happy union of nearly 60 years was blessed with two sons, Timothy and Jeff. David and Anita moved immediately to Cross Plains, Indiana where he lived the rest of his life. David was a founding member of and a lifelong member of the Laughery Valley Fish and Game Club, a forty year member of Canaan Masonic Lodge No. 581 F. & A.M. serving as secretary of the lodge in Canaan, Indiana. David served as chairman of the Democratic Party in Ripley County, Indiana for a period of seven years. He was a member of the 40 & 8, the Madison Moose Lodge No. 765 for 33 years, the American Legion Post No. 292 for 34 years, and a lifetime member of the Fraternal Order of Eagles Post No. 2018 and was commissioned as a Kentucky Colonel by the Governor of Kentucky. In 1960 David began working for the Monsanto Chemical Company; he worked there for 35 years in production and as a mechanic. He was vice-president of Local 561 Chemical Workers Union for a number of years. David was baptized into Christ and became a member of the Salem Christian Church in Cross Plains, now the Cross Plains Church of Christ. He loved his country, community, UK Wildcats, his grandchildren and great grandchildren. He loved buying and selling "articles too numerous" to mention and set up every spring and fall at the Friendship Flea Market for over 40 years. He believed in strongly and held dear to his heart the family farm, his family and his friends. He had always said that he wanted to "live respected and die regretted." He had owned the Cross Plains Mill for many years and set and waved from the porch daily for many years. David died on Saturday, April 27, 2019, at 10:15 a.m. at the River Terrace Health Campus in downtown Madison, Indiana.

Lilly Endowment giving $42.4 million for NW region

By MARSHALL V. KING
South Bend Tribune

The South Bend-Elkhart region landed another big investment.

The Lilly Endowment is giving a $42.4 million grant to the University of Notre Dame and South Bend-Elkhart Regional Partnership to form Labs for Industry Futures and Transformation, an initiative intended to bring together education, business and economic development in the area to make the region more competitive globally.

The Rev. John Jenkins, president of Notre Dame, told a crowd of nearly 200 gathered at ETHOS Innovation Center that the region is responding by coming together to become a better place to live, but also compete in the global economy.

“We find ourselves in a different time when change is lightning fast, often disruptive, but full of promise,” he said. “We can become a powerful center for innovation and initiative. We must seize this opportunity Lilly has given us.”

The Lilly grant, similar to ones awarded to Fort Wayne, Columbus and Bloomington regions, is intended to help the region train, attract and keep talent by focusing on innovation and technology.

“We try to look for areas that have a strong core of assets that they can be brought together to drive greater economic benefit,” said Rob Smith, Lilly Endowment’s vice president for community development.

In northern Indiana, a $42 million Indiana Regional Cities Initiative grant four years ago focused on investing in quality of place projects across St. Joseph, Elkhart and Marshall counties. That grant prompted regional collaboration and yielded further investment in training for the region’s students and workers.

This grant is expected to bring together educational institutions, including school systems and higher education, with business and manufacturing. A 2019 Brookings Institute report indicated that the South Bend-Elkhart region is the third most vulnerable in the nation due to disruption from automation and artificial intelligence.

While the endowment is providing $42.4 million, another $4 million is being contributed by the University of Notre Dame, according to John Affleck-Graves, executive vice president of Notre Dame and part of the South Bend-Elkhart Regional Partnership.

Other investment from partners in the region already totals $170 million, according to Regina Emberton, president and CEO of the regional partnership.

• Richard Lugar

GOP nomination went badly from the start. His kickoff rally began just hours after the 1995 bombing of the Oklahoma City federal building, and he struggled to build name recognition and support.

He withdrew a year into the race after failing to win a single convention delegate, but not before foreshadowing the threat of terrorism that would become all too real on Sept. 11, 2001. Three of his television ads depicted mushroom clouds and warned of the growing danger of weapons of mass destruction in the hands of terrorist groups.

Lugar’s time as a Washington foreign policy expert was the highlight of a political career that began with his election to the Indianapolis school board in the early 1960s. City GOP leaders encouraged him to run for mayor in 1967. He spent eight years at the city’s helm.

He first ran for Senate in 1974, narrowly losing to Sen. Birch Bayh in a Democratic landslide after the Watergate scandal. He ran again two years later and easily unseated three-term Democratic Sen. Vance Hartke, launching a 36-year Capitol Hill career that made him Indiana’s longest-serving senator.

He built a reputation as someone willing to work across the aisle and showed he could buck his party, notably with two major disagreements with President Ronald Reagan.

In 1986, Reagan was inclined to accept the rigged election that would have kept Philippine President Ferdinand Marcos in office. But Lugar went to the islands as an election observer and said Reagan was misinformed. Lugar’s stand shifted U.S. support to the ultimate winner, Corazon Aquino, bringing down Marcos.

In another break with Reagan, Lugar pushed through Congress — over the president’s veto — the economic sanctions that Nelson Mandela said played a crucial role in overthrowing white minority rule in South Africa.

At home, Lugar remained the Indiana GOP’s most popular figure, trouncing opponents with at least two-thirds of the vote in four straight elections.

He was the top Republican on the Senate’s Foreign Affairs Committee when he first worked with Obama, taking the then-Illinois senator with him to Russia, Ukraine and Azerbaijan in 2005 to visit weapon dismantlement sites. He then co-sponsored 2007 legislation with Obama on eliminating stockpiles of shoulder-fired missiles.

Obama frequently cited his work with Lugar during the 2008 presidential campaign as evidence of his bipartisanship and foreign policy experience. Lugar endorsed John McCain but didn’t distance himself from Obama at the time.

That changed by Lugar’s 2012 re-election campaign.

The attacks on his conservatism — combined with voter wariness about his age and long Washington tenure and questions about him not owning a home in Indiana since the late 1970s — led to Lugar’s first defeat since 1974. His tea party-backed challenger, Richard Mourdock, grabbed 60 percent of the GOP primary vote.

Lugar’s nuclear disarmament work with Nunn, the Democratic senator, led to about 7,600 Soviet nuclear warheads being deactivated and the destruction of more than 900 intercontinental ballistic missiles by the time Lugar left office, according to U.S. military figures. The program is credited with removing all nuclear weapons from the former Soviet republics of Kazakhstan, Ukraine and Belarus.

Born April 4, 1932, in Indianapolis, Lugar graduated at the top of his classes at both Indianapolis Shortridge High School and at Denison University in Ohio. At Denison, he met his future wife, Charlene. They married in 1956 and had four sons.

Willard I. Lawson

since the young farm boy left Kentucky to see the world and ended up serving 327 days in the Navy.

His parents — C. H. and Gertie Mae Gunnell Lawson — are gone now. His siblings — brothers William, Leonard and Albert, and sisters Ann Moore, Mary Lutxehus and Margaret Ingles — also are deceased.

Two half-sisters — Janet Wilson of Middletown, Ohio, and Geneva Taylor of Monroe, Ohio — were there last weekend to welcome him back.

Altogether, 60-some members of Lawson’s extended family made the trip to honor him. They came from Kentucky, Indiana and Ohio.

“We are scattered everywhere,” said his niece, Linda Gordon, of Milton, who worked with the military and local officials to plan the tribute. “We had some relatives who lived too far away to come, but there were over 60 who came. That was really great to see everybody. I haven’t seen some of them for many, many years. I hardly recognized them, but now we can keep in touch.”

Gordon doesn’t remember Lawson, but she does remember her family talking about his death at Pearl Harbor.

“I had a sister-in-law who has since passed away who knew him when they were young. She heard him say that he wanted to join the Navy and see the world.

“He got to see some of it for a while. He enlisted Jan. 15, 1941, and he was baptised in the Christian faith on March 11 of the same year.”

There is a cross for Lawson in the cemetery in Middletown, Ohio, where he was born, but Gordon said the family decided to make the Veteran’s Memorial Cemetery in Madison his final resting place.

Gordon said she did not expect the attention that was focused on the tribute for Lawson.

His casket arrived Friday evening at the Louisville airport and was met by honor guards from the Navy, state police escorts, Patriot Guard escorts and others paying tribute as the motorcade traveled the Watterson Expressway to Interstate 71 to the Campbellsburg exit and on to Trimble County on U.S. 421. The procession moved through the county into Bedford, along the roadway through Milton and to the Madison-Milton Bridge. Indiana State Police and Madison police joined the procession as it moved off Second Street to Baltimore, then to Main to turn onto Jefferson Street and ultimately to the hilltop where Lawson’s casket remained overnight at the Lytle Welty Funeral Home’s Vail Chapel.

“I didn’t know that it was going to gather as much attention as it did. ...the word really got out,” Gordon said, noting that people were on the roadways at various spots for all of the trip.

“That was really a touching thing for them to do.”

The escorts were back again at midday Saturday to take Lawson from the funeral chapel to the Indiana Veteran’s Memorial Cemetery for the services.

And, once more people stood along the route to pay respects.

At the end of the service at the cemetery, Navy officers presented the flag from Lawson’s casket to a tearful Gordon. She will be the keeper of that flag.

“It was the flag that had the 48 stars,” she noted. When Lawson died, Alaska and Hawaii had not yet been admitted to the union.

With the ceremonies behind her and Lawson back home in the Ohio River valley, Gordon took a minute to reflect on a man she didn’t know but she helped to honor.

“When I think about him, what he must have gone through that day that he died, I feel such a profound sadness. But, yet, there is joy, too, that he is home at last.”

All 'A' State Softball Finals

Carroll girls roll into Final Four before ousted by champ Holy Cross

COURIER STAFF REPORT

Carroll County softball rolled through three pool games and the quarterfinals untouched before seeing its run in the All "A" Classic State Finals ended by powerful Louisville Holy Cross 16-0 in the semifinals on Sunday.

The Panthers whipped Louisville Brown 29-0, edged Raceland 5-4 and knocked off Middlesboro 8-3 to go undefeated in Pool A on Saturday. Carroll then opened Sunday with a 12-2 hammering of Nicholas County in the quarterfinals.

But Holy Cross, now winners of the last five All "A" state championships, was a different story.

The Cougars (22-1) hammered Carroll ace Andrea Searcy for 16 hits and a pair of pitchers combined to hold the Panthers to just one hit in a game that ended after four innings on the mercy rule in the semifinals. Holy Cross then beat Green County 5-2 in the championship.

Carson Goatley got the win for Holy Cross, striking out seven and walking none in three hitless innings. Bella Velez allowed a hit and struck out two in one inning of relief.

Searcy struck out four and walked four in her worst outing of the season. Bailey Mefford had Carroll's lone hit.

Things went much better for Carroll earlier in the day when they pounded out nine hits in the six-inning win over Nicholas County.

Mefford was 3-for-4 with a run and an RBI while Mallory Besselman was 2-for-4 with a run and two RBIs. Hailey Austin had a hit and drove in two runs, Kaitlyn Gaddis had a hit and scored three times, Allie Beach had a hit and an RBI, Jordyn Shepherd had a hit and Jordan Ray went hitless but scored three times and drove in two runs.

Searcy held Nicholas to two runs on five hits in six innings with seven strikeouts and two walks.

On Saturday, Carroll needed some late-inning heroics to beat Raceland and keep its unbeaten streak alive. After scoring three runs in the bottom of the seventh to force extra innings, the Panthers got the winning run in the bottom of the eighth when Layne Huesman scored on a wild pitch.

Searcy struck out 14 and walked four while allowing two earned runs on six hits in eight innings to pick up the win. Besselman had a double and scored twice, Gaddis had a hit and an RBI and Mefford and Searcy each had hits.

No details for the wins against Brown or Middlesboro were available.

Both Searcy and Besselman were named to the all-tournament team. Maddie Gailor, of Holy Cross, was named the most valuable player.

Carroll County (16-3) travels to Trimble County Thursday.

Softball Cubs blank Rebs in Cancer Game

sports@madisoncourier.com

Madison did all of its scoring in one inning to pull away for a 7-0 softball win over Southwestern in their annual Cancer Awareness game Saturday at Lady Cub Field.

SOFTBALL ROUNDUP

Other than the third inning, the Lady Cubs had no luck against Southwestern pitchers Lakyn Wilson and Kailey Burns. But that all changed in one inning.

Madison rapped out six hits — including a two-run home run by Bailey Dyer — and took advantage of one crucial Southwestern error to score seven runs and put the game away.

"(Southwestern) did a real nice job of keeping us off balance for most of the game at the plate," Madison coach Tony Ralston said. "They put runners on and (pitcher) Abby (Moore) was really able to work her way out each time. Our defense did a good job today. I want to thank everyone for coming out today on a special day we take pride in."

REIGNING IN THE RAIN: Southwestern's girls Southern Indiana Conference Tennis championship team poses with the tourney trophy in the rain at the Stucker Courts at Shawe Memorial. Southwestern tennis beat a strong Christian Academy team in the semifinals and then posted a rain-shortened win over Trinity Lutheran in the finals to claim the Southern Indiana Tennis Conference tournament championship Saturday at Shawe.

"It was a good Southern Indiana Tennis Conference for the Lady Rebels," coach Kenny Garrett said. "Southwestern beat a strong Christian Academy team in the first round 3-2 and was a set ahead in three matches vs. Trinity Lutheran in the championship match when the rain came. Christian Academy was short their No. 2 doubles team but really solid at singles."

Defending SITC champ Shawe goes 0-2 with narrow 3-2 losses to Trinity Lutheran and Milan

The Rebels swept both doubles matches and picked up the crucial third win in singles to edge Christian 3-2.

Ashlyn Cloud and Chloe Adcock knocked off Jessica Li and Ashley Moffett 6-0, 6-0 at No. 1 doubles while Ally Voorhies and Audrey Bare won by forfeit at No. 2 doubles. Elle Ford picked up a 6-4, 2-6, 10-6 win over Julia Lostutter at No. 2 singles while Julia Worcester fell 7-5, 6-2 to Meagan Hunt at No. 1 singles and Autumn Harmon lost 6-0, 6-0 to Lindsey Bilkey at No. 3 singles.

"Ashlyn Cloud and Chloe Adcock got us off to a quick start ... to give us two wins with the forfeit at two dubs so it came down to singles," Garrett said. "Autumn was not feeling very well and struggled through her match, Julia played a strong match against a very strong player before falling. It all came down to number two singles as Elle Ford pulled out a big 6-4, 2-6 and 10-6 win for us to get to the championship.

None of the matches in the finals finished due to rain, but since Southwestern was leading four of the five matches at the time of the suspension, a vote of the coaches handed the victory to Southwestern.

In singles, Worcester was leading Abby Schult 4-2 at No. 1, Ford was trailing 3-2 to Sarah Lemming at No. 2, and Harmon was leading Regan Cain 6-2, 2-2 at No. 3. In doubles, Cloud and Adcock were up 7-6 (7-2), 1-1 over Lauren Fleetwood and Cassidy Burnside at No. 1 and Voorhies and Bare were up 6-3, 3-1 over Rebekah Brown and Katlyn Mensendiek at No. 2.

"In the championship vs. Trinity we jumped out to set leads in three matches when the rain came and canceled the finish," Garrett said. "As we were up in four matches and even in the fifth match it was conceded for us the win the tournament. We had beaten Trinity 5-0 earlier in the season."

In the opening round of the tournament, Christian Academy defeated Milan 3-2. In the second round, Trinity Lutheran defeated Shawe 3-2 and in the consolation match, Milan defeated Shawe 3-2.

Against Trinity, Shawe's Abigail Hill defeated Schult 6-1, 6-1 at No. 1 singles and Lina Leatherman and Kelly Hesse won 6-3, 3-6, 10-8 over Fleetwood and Burnside at No. 1 doubles. Phoebe Grote lost 6-4, 6-2 to Lemming at No. 2 singles, Reyna Ortiz fell 6-0, 6-0 to Cain at No. 3 singles and Caroline Grote and Jessica Lopez lost 7-5, 6-3 to Brown and Mensendiek at No. 2 doubles.

Against Milan, Phoebe Grote won 6-0, 6-1 over Margo Taylor at No. 2 singles and Leatherman and Hesse won 7-5, 7-5 over Cheyenne McMullen and Delaney Bushorn at No. 1 doubles. Hill fell 3-6, 6-4, 11-9 to Maitri Patel at No. 1 singles, Ortiz lost 6-0, 6-3 to Lucy Ortt at No. 3 singles and Caroline Grote and Lopez lost 6-1, 6-7, 10-7 to Maddy Schmidt and Cici Bailey at No. 2 doubles.

Southwestern's Ford, Cloud and Adcock, as well as Shawe's Leatherman, Hesse and Hill were named to the all-conference team. Also earning the honor was Hunt and Bilkey from Christian Academy, Cain from Trinity Lutheran, and Patel from Milan.

Southwestern (9-1) was to visit Scottsburg on Monday while Shawe plays at Charlestown Thursday.

Hanover women dominate HCACs to claim title

COURIER STAFF REPORT
sports@madisoncourier.com

Hanover women's track & field won its second Heartland Collegiate Athletic Conference championship in the past three years and fifth overall with an impressive performance at Mount St. Joseph on Saturday.

The Panthers, who previously won HCAC outdoor titles in 2011, 2012, 2013 and 2017, had 26 different scoring finishes, led by Kenna Hunter, a junior from Mooresville, who captured the high-point championship with 34.5 points. Hanover scored 179 points to easily outdistance runner-up Rose-Hulman with 122.

HANOVER ROUNDUP

Hunter's brother, Reece Hunter, equaled her feat to led the Hanover men to a runner-up finish with 152 points. Reese, a sophomore, scored a conference-best 33 points as the Panthers posted their best finish in the outdoor meet since 1984. Rose-Hulman won the title with 240 points.

Kenna Hunter made her presence felt all over the stadium. She won the 400-meter hurdles for a third-straight year with a time of 1:06.39. She was third in the 100 hurdles in 16.63, third in the triple jump at 10.12 meters and sixth in the high jump at 1.50 meters. In addition, she teamed with Makenzie Carroll, Teal Burnett and Riley Austin to place third in the 1600-meter relay in 4:10.83.

Alexis Harsh, a freshman from North Vernon, picked up Hanover's lone win on Friday's first day of the championships, with an impressive 5.31 meters in the long jump while Kenna Hunter was second in the same event at 5.11 meters.

Emily Clancy was second in the pole vault at 3.50 meters on Friday while teammate and school record holder Erin Trimpe was third at 3.35 meters. Erin Browning was second in the shot put at 11.67 meters, Ariel Barlow was second in the 3000-meter steeplechase in 11:49.12 and Mariah Grider was third in the discus at 37.33 meters.

Reece Hunter picked up a victory in the 400-meter dash in 49.75, was second in the high jump at 1.89 meters and second in the 200-meter dash in 22.52 on Saturday. The Panthers had two other school-record performances while posting wins. Browning, a sophomore from Greensburg, won the women's hammer throw at 51.08 meters, a distance that keeps her among the top 20 marks in the country. Joe Sheryak, a senior from Greenwood, won the men's 400-meter hurdles with a school record 54.90 clocking.

Arig Tong won the women's 5000-meter run in 18:16.83 and Jacob Hedrick wrapped up his weekend with his second win of the meet in the men's 5000 run in 15:10.16. Hedrick had won the 10,000-meters in 31:52.15 for Hanover's lone men's victory on Friday.

Slow start derails men's bid to upset Transy in lacrosse

A slow start doomed Hanover's men's lacrosse team in a 13-11 loss to Transylvania at home on Saturday in the matchup of the two best teams in the Heartland Collegiate Lacrosse Conference.

The visiting Pioneers outscored Hanover 4-0 in the first quarter to seize the advantage that they needed but Transy never pulled away from the Panthers as they had done in a 22-5 rout in their earlier meeting in Lexington, Kentucky.

The Panthers outscored Transy 11-9 the rest of the way but couldn't overcome the early deficit.

Bret Schell had five goals and Noah King scored three to lead Hanover. Patrick Boylston added two goals and an assist and Dirk Meinhart had a goal for the Panthers. Noah Dubrava stopped 17 shots in goal for the Panthers but took the loss to fall to 10-3 on the season.

Hanover ends the regular season 11-5 overall, 6-2 HCLC to earn the No. 2 seed in the conference tourney. The Panthers will host No. 3 seed Earlham in the semifinals on Wednesday.

Women's lacrosse romps 20-2 in regular season finale

Hanover women's lacrosse wrapped up the regular season with a 20-2 romp over Anderson at home on Saturday.

Rachel Davis had two goals and two assists, Eme Edman had two goals and an assist, Emma Boomershine and Sarah Todd each had a pair of goals and Anne Breeding had a goal and two assists.

Julia Long stopped three shots in goal to pick up the win and improve to 7-7 on the season.

The victory allows the Panthers to end the season with a 7-8 overall record and 4-2 in the Heartland Collegiate Lacrosse Conference, good for third place. Hanover will open the HCLC tournament at No. 2 seed Earlham Wednesday.

Softball sweeps Bluffton in season finale to finish 13-21

Allison Wiseman got the win after allowing one earned run on four hits in seven innings with five strikeouts and no walks. She finishes the season with a 5-8 record.

Roark had two doubles for the Panthers and Smith added a hit and scored a run.

The Panthers had been on the wrong end of a doubleheader sweep at Indiana-Southeast Friday, losing 4-3 and 5-1.

The opening game went eight innings with Hanover scoring a run in the top half to take a 3-2 lead before the host Grenadiers answered with two runs in the bottom of the eighth to pull out the win.

Former Southwestern Rebel Brittney Ralston scored in the top of the sixth inning of game two to pull Hanover to within 2-1, but IUS scored three runs in the bottom half of the frame to pull away.

Hanover wraps up the season at 13-21 overall and 6-10 in the HCAC.

Hanover baseball split a doubleheader at home against Defiance on Saturday, winning 3-2 and losing 5-4.

Southwestern cashes in Trimble miscues, 13-1

By DAVID CAMPBELL
Courier Staff Writer
dcampbell@madisoncourier.com

SLAM DANCE: Southwestern's Bailey Elliott is met at home plate by his teammates — including base-runners Jackson Stockdale, Dylan West and Tyler Kramer — after driving in all three with a fourth inning grand slam against Trimble County on Friday. The Rebels won 13-1 before splitting a doubleheader at Scottsburg Saturday to stand 10-7 going into Monday's game at Oldenburg Academy. (Staff photo by David Campbell)

Trimble County couldn't dig out from under its own mistakes Friday and Southwestern took advantage of seemingly every one in a 13-1 baseball win in Hanover.

The Rebels collected just five hits in the five-inning game, but with three Trimble errors, 10 walks and two hit batters, they almost didn't need them.

BASEBALL ROUNDUP

"We talk to our players all the time — especially the pitchers — about how high school baseball is all about throwing strikes. If you throw strikes, you can be effective because high school players are going to get themselves out. If you struggle to throw strikes, it's going to be a long day," Southwestern coach Derik Hutton said. "The last four games, we've done a really good job of making the pitchers come to us and not swinging at pitches in the dirt or over our head. That's why we've been more successful than we haven't."

Southwestern (9-6) scored six runs in the first inning to take control of the game, but in all reality the Rebels shouldn't have scored half that total.

After hitting leadoff batter Tyler Kramer, Trimble County pitcher Ryan Goody struck out the next two batters and looked poised to escape the inning unscathed. But an RBI single by Mitchell Adcock scored Kramer for the Rebels' first run and a single by Talon Harmon and back-to-back walks to Nate Lichlyter and Brady McLain loaded the bases and forced in a second run.

At that point, the wheels fell off for the Raiders. Jackson Stockdale hit a ground ball to third base that should have ended the inning, but Matt Saylor's throw to first went wide. First baseman Dalton Penick fielded the ball and attempted to throw to second to catch McLain off the bag, but threw the ball into left field instead.

The double-error scored two runs and Goody couldn't get another out, walking Dylan West and hitting Kramer a second time to load the bases again before uncorking a wild pitch to score Stockdale. Another walk ended his day and Seth Brewer got the final out with Trimble trailing 6-0.

Trimble County (1-11) came back in the second inning to pick up a run on back-to-back singles by Evan Stevens and Logan Clifford but that ended up being all the visitors from Kentucky would get.

Southwestern added a run in the third without a hit when West walked and later scored on an error and the Rebels blew the game open in the fourth when they scored six more runs, including a Bailey Elliott grand slam to left field.

"It was great to see him get one out, especially at our spacious park which isn't an easy thing to do," Hutton said. "He led the conference in home runs last year with two, so we don't see a lot. But he generates a lot of bat speed through the zone and has a lot of power. He's certainly capable of it."

The 13 runs were more than enough for Lichlyter, who cruised through five innings to pick up the win. Other than the hits in the second, Lichlyter wasn't touched, giving up only three hits total while striking out eight and walking four.

"He came out, got ahead early and was throwing all of his pitches for a strike," Hutton said. "And more importantly, he was keeping his pitches down."

Lichlyter also had one of Southwestern's five hits in the game and drew two walks to reach base all three times, as did West who drew three walks. Kramer didn't have a hit but was hit twice and scored twice while McLain had two RBIs and scored a run.

Goody took the loss for Trimble after giving up six runs — two earned — on two hits in two-thirds of an inning with two strikeouts and three walks. Brewer allowed six earned runs on three hits in three innings of relief with no strikeouts, seven walks and a hit batter. He also had the Raiders' other hit.

On Saturday, Harmon used his arm and his bat to lead Southwestern baseball to a doubleheader split at Scottsburg Saturday.

The Rebels dropped the opening game 5-3 but then bounced back to win the finale by the same 5-3 score.

In game one, Southwestern took an early 1-0 lead on a Adcock RBI single in the first but Scottsburg answered with three runs in the first and two in the second to go ahead 5-1.

The Rebels got two runs back on an RBI single by Elliott and a sacrifice fly by Zach Cole but got no closer.

Cole had a double while Ethan Stewart added a single and scored a run for the Rebels. Elliott took the loss after allowing five earned runs on six hits in five and two-thirds innings with six strikeouts and two walks. Harmon struck out one in one-third inning of relief.

Harmon had an RBI single in the top of the first and got the win on the mound in the game two victory.

Scottsburg scored two runs in the bottom of the first off starter Landon DeAtley but the Rebels came back in the third on Dylan West's two-run single to take a 3-2 lead.

The Warriors tied the game in the third but RBIs by Adcock and Nate Lichlyter in the fifth pushed the Rebels to victory.

Harmon allowed one unearned run on four hits with one walk in three and a third innings to get the win. Cole struck out three in one and two-thirds scoreless innings for the save.

Harmon was also 2-for-3 at the plate while Elliott had a hit and scored twice and Cole had a hit.

Southwestern (10-7) was to visit Oldenburg Academy Monday. Trimble County was to play at South Oldham Monday.

Errors cost Cubs fourth straight setback, 9-1

Five errors doomed Madison baseball to its fourth-straight loss, 9-1 at South Dearborn Saturday.

The Cubs collected seven hits overall but could only cash in one run in the fourth when Gabe True singled and scored on Anthony DeMarco's RBI.

Meanwhile, South Dearborn scored solo runs in the second and third innings before pushing three runs across in the fourth and four in the sixth to blow open the game.

Zach Forner went 2-for-4 with a double and Coper Yancey had two hits to lead Madison. Quinten Humes and Evan True added hits for the Cubs.

Hunter Ferris took the loss after allowing five runs — three earned — on six hits in five innings with five strikeouts and a walk. True allowed four runs — three earned — on three hits in one inning with a strikeout and two walks.

Madison (6-6) hosts Scottsburg today.

Carroll Co. doubles up Pendleton Co., 20-10

Carroll County baseball scored eight runs in the first inning and kept piling on runs from there to double up Pendleton County in a 20-10 slugfest at Panther Field on Friday.

The Panthers pounded Pendelton in the opening frame capped by Zach Clifford's three-run home run to build an 8-0 lead.

Pendelton came back to score four runs in both the second and third innings and two more in the fifth, but Carroll never stopped scoring. The Panthers pushed four across in the second, four more in the third, three in the fourth and one more in the fifth to end the game on the mercy rule.

Clifford went 3-for-4 at the plate with five RBIs and two runs scored to lead the Panthers. Blake Reynolds was 2-for-3 with a run and two RBIs, Landry Kelton was 2-for-3 with two runs and an RBI, Dane Lacefield had a double, a run and an RBI, Kennedy Daigle had a hit, three RBIs and two runs scored, Phoenix Owen had a hit, scored twice and drove in a run, and Andrew Shaw had a run and an RBI.

Lacefield picked up the win after allowing six runs — three earned — on two hits in two and a third innings with a strikeout and five walks. Jacob Polley gave up two runs on three hits in two-thirds of an inning with a walk and Craig Beach allowed two runs on three hits in two innings with four strikeouts.

Carroll (10-7) was to visit Eminence Monday.

Corydon sneaks past Cubs 334-341 as play turns soggy at Sunrise

COURIER STAFF REPORT
sports@madisoncourier.com

Corydon Central snuck past Madison by seven strokes to beat the Cubs in their own Madison Golf Invitational on a cold and wet Saturday at Sunrise Golf Course.

The Panthers shot a 334 to best runner-up Madison's 341. Southwestern was third in the 11-team event with a 350.

Much of the tournament was played in a steady rain with the last groups enduring a downpour. As a result, nine golfers failed to finish the event, including all five of Madison's "B" team and two of Shawe's three golfers.

Jennings County's Bryce Kirshner and Corydon's Joey Wiseman survived the elements shoot a pair of one-over 73s to lead the field. Kirshner then claimed low-medalist with a win in a playoff.

Austin's Blake Stamper was third with a 75 while Madison's Luke Ommen and Southwestern's Hunter Mefford each shot 77 to round out the top five.

Drew Barron fired a 78 for Madison "A" while Nate Hamby had a 92 and Trent Jameison had a 94. Dylan Eblen and Landon McDowell each had 43s on the front nine for Madison "B" while Mitchell Liter had a 45 and Burk Shelley a 52 but none completed their rounds.

Austin Kramer shot a 79 for Southwestern while Trent Hadley had an 86, Camden Ashby a 108 and Bill Tingle a non-scoring 109.

Madison's Bailey Dyer is welcomed at home plate after her two-run homer in the second inning.

Kennedy Stidham opened the crucial third inning with a double and scored on Emma Cammack's single for the first run of the game. After Wilson got an out, Hannah Uhl and Morgan Cahall hit back-to-back singles for the Cubs' second run.

Burns relieved Wilson after Cahall's RBI single and got the second out of the inning, but Paige Young then laced a two-run single to put Madison ahead 4-0.

Burns seemingly got out of the inning when she struck out the next batter, Peyton Holt, but Holt reached when catcher Trinity McLain couldn't hold onto the ball and Young came home on the play.

Dyer then made the mistake hurt even more when she ripped the ball over the left-field fence for her second home run of the season.

Madison had only three baserunners the rest of the game against Burns and reliever Abby Ralston, but the damage had been done. Southwestern, meanwhile, threatened against Madison in the second by loading the bases, and in the fourth when it left two on, but failed to score both times.

Moore allowed only five hits while striking out six and walking three in seven innings to get the win for Madison. Wilson gave up four earned runs on six hits with four strikeouts and no walks in two and a third innings for Southwestern and took the loss.

Stidham and Holt each had two hits for the Cubs while Moore added a single. Abby Ralston and Cadence Humes each had two hits for Southwestern and Burns added a single.

Madison (5-10) was to visit Charlestown Monday. Southwestern (5-7) plays at Rising Sun Wednesday.

Shawe falls 19-6 at Austin without a hit

Shawe softball failed to pick up a hit but it still had plenty of baserunners in a 19-6 loss at Austin on Saturday.

The Eagles issued 13 walks and committed seven errors to give the Hilltoppers plenty of chances to score runs. Unfortunately, Shawe's pitching couldn't keep Austin in check.

After the Hilltoppers scored three times in the first on a bases-loaded fielder's choice, a walk and an error, Austin struck for nine runs to take a 9-3 lead.

Shawe came back with three more runs in the second — all on bases-loaded walks — to cut the lead to three, but a six-run fourth and a four-run sixth allowed Austin to end the game early.

Charity Green and Johanna Leatherman each had two RBIs for the Hilltoppers while Jaylin Lee had an RBI and Presley Coots and Kristen Snodgrass each scored twice.

Lee allowed seven runs on one hit with four walks without getting an out in the first to take the loss. Snodgrass worked the final six innings and allowed 12 runs — just six earned — on 10 hits with three strikeouts and three walks.

Shawe (0-10) was to host Switzerland County on Monday.

Furry foe fight nights and floppy frien

Annie Lane

Dear Annie: My friend Jess and I recently moved into a three-bedroom apartment together. We each have one cat. We knew it would be challenging to integrate the cats at first, but we figured that it wouldn't be too difficult in such a spacious place. Boy were we wrong. Every night is fight night for these cats. I wake up several times a night to them body slamming each other, from the sound of it. I can't tell if they're fighting or just roughhouse playing, but it doesn't sound good. I get out of bed to detach them; two hours later we repeat the whole scene. Jess and I have tried separating them at night, but our place is carpeted and when we shut the doors the cats start trying to dig trenches underneath. We don't want them destroying the carpet of our rental. We're locked into our lease for another nine months — and moving is such a pain that I'd hate to have to move again, even after our lease is up. Do you or your readers have any tips for making cats get along? The sleepless nights are starting to catch up with me. — Tired of the Night Prowls

Dear Tired: A harmonious multicat household starts with preparation: keeping the cats in separate rooms and slowly introducing them to each other via scent by exchanging blankets that they sleep on, for instance. But there's no use mewing over spilled milk.

I'd recommend using a feline pheromone diffuser, such as Feliway, to foster a more relaxed environment for the cats. Install several throughout the apartment for best results. Also, be sure there are ample feline facilities: Vets often recommend one litter box per cat plus one more, so you should have three. And, of course, play with them and be sure they get lots of exercise. Do everything you can during the day to tucker the little tigers out for the night. If I hear any ace tips from readers, I'll be sure to print them here.

Dear Annie: Every year when Easter comes around, many well-meaning people purchase adorable bunnies for their children.

I have two rabbits I adore. However a huge amount of work is required for these pets, and I wanted to share some of my tips and warnings.

1) Rabbits are constantly chewing on furniture, cutting wires, etc. A room that is "rabbit-proofed" is needed for everyone's safety.

2) A good-sized cage is needed, but also give the rabbit some free time to run around outside of the cage every day, too. I let mine run around free about five hours a day.

3) Most rabbits can be trained to use a litter box, but it is normal for them to leave "pellets" on the floor that are easy to clean up.

4) They need to eat hay all day so their intestinal systems run properly. I give my bunnies rabbit kibble twice a day and vegetables twice a day as well. Check the internet for the right vegetables to give them. They are not able to vomit so everything they eat must be carefully chosen.

5) Litter should be changed twice a day. They enjoy kicking litter and hay outside their cages, so keep the vacuum handy!

Rabbits are one of the most abandoned animals in our society. However, if you are ready to do the work, you will have an adorable companion for a long time to come! — Mrs. Roberta F.

Dear Mrs. Roberta: These are all great and timely tips. I'd like to add that anyone thinking of getting a rabbit should adopt, not shop. As you mentioned, rabbits are frequently abandoned, and as they can live up to 10 years, there are plenty of bunnies in shelters right now in need of fur-ever homes. Thanks for writing.

BRIDGE

MORE DISTRIBUTION MEANS FEWER LOSERS

In "King Lear," Shakespeare wrote, "Distribution should undo excess."

At the bridge table, though, good distribution -- an unbalanced hand with long suits -- often forgives excess in the auction. There is one proviso -- that you have a good fit.

Look at the North hand in today's diagram. With the opponents retaining a respectful silence, North opens one diamond, and partner responds one spade. What should North rebid?

As I mentioned yesterday, once a fit has been found, use the Losing Trick Count. Here, North's hand contains only five losers: three spades, one heart and one club. Partner, for a one-level response, is assumed to have nine losers. (If he has fewer, he will take the auction higher.) Five plus nine is 14. Subtracting that from the magic number of 24 gives 10 -- the number of tricks available. It is a game deal.

So, North should jump to four clubs, a splinter bid showing game-going values, four-card spade support and a singleton (or void) in clubs.

The South hand now has only five losers: one spade, one heart and three diamonds. (He can ruff his club losers in his partner's hand.) The LTC says that North-South can win 14 tricks!

Some form of Blackwood will tell South that six spades should be the final contract.

West leads the club king. South can afford one trump loser, but not two. What should he do?

The correct play is first to cash the spade ace. If an honor drops, it's all over. But if only low cards appear, declarer enters dummy to lead a spade toward the queen. This avoids guesswork.

Two ISP officers recognized for work at Sellersburg Post

Sgt. Cleveland (right) and Cpl. Didat pose for a photo with their certificates for dedicated service. (Submitted photo)

Two Indiana State Police troopers from the Sellersburg Post were recently recognized for their dedicated service to the department and the State of Indiana. Sergeant John Cleveland and Corporal Stephen Didat were both recognized and presented with a certificate of service recognized by District Lieutenant Chris Keeton on behalf of the superintendent at a ceremony at the Sellersburg post.

Sgt. Cleveland was recognized for 35 years of service. He is a native of Clark County, Indiana, and is a 1973 graduate of Jeffersonville High School. Sgt. Cleveland attended Indiana University before becoming a police officer for the Indiana University Police Department and later the Monroe County Sheriff's Department.

Sgt. Cleveland graduated from the 41st Indiana State Police Recruit Academy in 1984 and was assigned initially to the Pendleton Post where he was quickly assigned to special investigations, working as an undercover officer. He was then transferred to the Bloomington district from 1987 to 1996 and was then assigned to the department's Problem Oriented Policing Unit where he worked until 2000.

Sgt. Cleveland was then transferred to the Sellersburg district in 2000 where he continues to work. He was promoted to serve as a district squad sergeant in 2008. During his career with the state police, Sgt. Cleveland has worked as a firearms instructor, SCUBA team member, Tactical Intervention team-member and Field Training Officer. He lives in Madison.

Cpl. Didat was recognized for 30 years of service. He is a lifelong resident of Floyd County and is a 1976 graduate of Floyd Central High School. He attended Indiana University Southeast before graduating from the 46th Indiana State Police recruit aademy in 1988.

After graduation, Cpl. Didat was assigned to the Sellersburg district where he has worked throughout his career. While in the department, he has served as a state certified firearms instructor, emergency vehicle operations instructor and speed timing device instructor as well as a field traning officer and member of the tactical intervention platoon.

Cpl. Didat was assigned to the Problem Oriented Policing Unit from 1996 to 2004 when he was promoted to corporal.

He lives in Floyds Knobs.
